I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

Secretary to Government,
Departments of Education & Agriculture.

Copy to the Chief Secretariat.

Letter No. 4059 dated the 6th December 1918, from the Registrar Mysore University, to the Secretary to Government, Departments of Education and Agriculture.

With reference to para. 10 of the Proceedings of the Government of Mysore No. G.7248-300/G.P.22-17-6 dated the 10th October 1918, I have the honor to submit the following statements shewing why it is undesirable that the Examination books of candidates should be utilised in the way indicated by the Superintendent of the Government Press.

The Superintendent offers two alternatives, (1) that the Examinees' books should be returned to him, or (2) that both sides of the paper of the Examinees' books should be written on.

There are several reasons why the alternative (1) should not be adopted. Examiners invariably place their marks on the paper for each question or part of question answered, and occasionally make notes on the papers. It will cause much inconvenience and probably some inefficiency if this facility is to be removed. No examiner will care to mark the papers in any way if the marking is to become in a way public property. Again, each Examiner will be put to the trouble of removing the Register numbers from each book and other possible marks of identity within the book -- which, apart from the handwriting, sometimes appear. There will also be the trouble and expense of packing the books and forwarding them by rail to the Government Press. The strain on Examiners is already great and we have to do all we can to facilitate their work and not burden them with a duty of this kind. It is submitted also that the cost of carriage, apart from the trouble involved, will approximate to the value of the paper, or at least considerably take from the value of the latter. It is presumed that even if this alternative we adopted, an exception would have to be made of numerous outside Examiners.

As regards alternative (2) writing on both sides of the paper would would be most inconvenient for both Examinee and Examiner and the work of neither would be facilitated by such an innovation. Moreover, the Examinee makes use of the spare page for analyses and sketches of answers, and not infrequently the Examiner makes notes on such pages. Again, the paper, if used on both sides, would have to be particularly good and therefore costly.

It is submitted that neither alternative is in force in any University. The Madras University uses enormous quantities of Examination paper, and in spite of all its economising, it has never experimented in the way suggested. Above all things, it is essential that the examination work should be strictly confidential and that no one should see the answer books but the examiner. One way of economising, is that books corresponding in size to the probable length of the answers in different subjects should be issued. The University is experimenting in this respect and is doing its best to economise in the matter of Examination paper. Now that the war is over, the price of paper is sure to go down in the immediate future.

For these different reasons, it is submitted that it is not at all desirable to accept either of the alternatives given by the Superintendent, Government Press.
